

SRA Update

Issue 136 - February 2025

- General updates [#tab_8a1e1]
- Compliance updates [#tab_8a1e2]

Welcome to the latest issue of SRA Update. It is important that we respond to changes in the legal landscape by making sure our arrangements effectively protect clients' money. This is the final month you can respond to our three consultations on this subject, including proposals on our Compensation Fund. We are keen to hear as many views of possible, so we can get the balance right – a practical approach that safeguards client money, while also supporting a dynamic legal market that meets the needs of the public. Please take a look and have your say.

For those of you who work in-house, bookings are now open for our annual in-house conference in London in March. This event has proven very popular in past years, so don't hesitate to book your place. And finally, this week we have published a study on consumer vulnerability in the legal market, providing interesting insights and useful information for how you deal with and onboard your own clients.

Deadline approaching on client money consultations

[\[https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/client-money-consultation-october-2024/\]](https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/press/client-money-consultation-october-2024/)

As part of our ongoing review of consumer protection arrangements in the legal sector, there is still time for you to have your say on potential changes to how and when law firms handle client money, and how this money is protected. Our consultation on this, and arrangements for the SRA Compensation Fund, remains open until 21 February.

In-house conference 2025 – book your place!

[\[https://www.eventsforce.net/sra/718/home\]](https://www.eventsforce.net/sra/718/home)

If you work in-house, book your place at this year's in-house conference in London on 12 March. We'll be at County Hall in Belvedere Road for a half day packed with expert panels, useful advice and networking opportunities. As well as SRA speakers, hear from other experts from both the public and private sector at this free event. Don't delay as places are limited.

Research suggests measures to address consumer vulnerability

[<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/client-vulnerability-research/>]

We have published an independent study into consumer vulnerability in the legal market, as part of our ongoing commitment to improving access to legal services. The research suggests that there should be a greater focus on making services accessible for all rather than trying to make individual adjustments.

Anti-money laundering sanctions webinar in March

[<https://events.sra.org.uk/sra/730/home>]

Our next AML webinar will provide updates on our proactive sanctions work, guidance issued from Office of Trade Sanctions Implementation and a look at the latest trends. This webinar will be of particular interest to firms working in areas of higher risk such as international trade, or any firms dealing with sanctioned entities or people.

Making sure your firm is managing risk effectively

[<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/sra/research-publications/risk-legal-profession/>]

We have published new research to better understand law firms and solicitors' concerns around potential market-level risks. It also considers how they identify and tackle risks, as well as how they use SRA resources.

Welcome to the latest issue of Compliance News. This edition features information on newly published guidance on how to avoid being caught up in sham litigation cases. Such cases involve contested legal battles where both sides of the case are actually in cahoots and are using the litigation to launder money or conduct other illegal financial activity. Our guidance highlights red flags, as well as experiences from real firms targeted by criminals in this manner.

Also in this issue, there's new information on the Government's trade sanctions regime, a reminder about our recent warning notice on marketing your services, and on-going regulatory requests requiring some of you to provide information on how you handle complaints, or to confirm you have obtained the necessary accountants' reports.

Sham litigation - learning from a criminal case [<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/sham-litigation/>]

We have written guidance about sham litigation following an attempted case that led to a ten-year prison sentence last year. We spoke to some of the firms who were contacted by the perpetrators and can share some of the tactics they spotted as well other general features related to sham litigation.

Accountants' reports spot-check - final call for firms selected

[<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/news/news/accounts-rules-spot-check/>]

The deadline for completing the accountants' reports spot-check has now passed. If your firm was selected to take part, you need to submit the information as soon as possible to avoid the possibility of regulatory action. We will be contacting firms who have not met the deadline, so please get in touch if you have had issues submitting your data.

Have you been asked to provide complaints handling information?

[<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/news/news/first-tier-complaints-survey/>]

We have written to a randomly selected cross section of 750 firms, requiring your Compliance Officer to provide information on how you identify and handle first tier complaints. If you have been asked to participate, you have until 28 February to reply. It is a regulatory obligation that you respond.

Warning around marketing your services

[<https://qltt.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/2024-press-releases/warning-notice-unsolicited-approaches/>]

We have issued a warning notice about marketing your services to the public. We are particularly concerned about the behaviours of some firms doing high-volume consumer claims work. Unsolicited approaches such as cold calling and door knocking are prohibited, while firms need to make sure that information on 'no win, no fee' arrangements is clear and accurate, including information on charges and the risks around costs.

New guidance issued on trade sanctions

[<https://www.sra.org.uk/sra/news/SRA-Update-136-trade-sanctions>]

The Office of Trade Sanctions Implementation (OTSI), launched in October 2024, has the power to investigate suspected breaches of specific trade sanctions and take enforcement action. OTSI has recently issued new guidance, which has implications for the legal sector.
